THE WAR: "is very much on the conscience of the American people today." (Photos by Tim Culek)

Southern Senator Wants 'To See Blood Bath Stop'

By LEE STEPHENSON
Assistant Issue Editor

"I want to see this bloodbath stop!" These were the emphatic words of Senator Albert Gore, democratic senator from Tennessee, at a speech yesterday in the amphitheatre behind the Union.

Sen. Gore spoke out strongly against the Vietnam war saying that it is "very much on the conscience of the American people today."

"President Johnson made one of the great mistakes in history by the use of combat forces to achieve what we couldn't do by diplomacy and propaganda," Sen. Gore said.

However Sen. Gore countered by saying that the president "has acted with great courage" by announcing that he is not a candidate for re-election.

By doing this, he stated, Pres. Johnson will be in a much better position to settle the conflict without the pressures of a man seeking office.

"I'm glad you've had a symposium on Vietnam," Sen. Gore continued. "There has been a decided change in the attitude of collegians. Two or three years ago there was an alienation, almost a rejection" in college students' attitudes about government.

"Fortunately this has changed. The American college campus has come alive this year. It has played a significant part. And I welcome the youth of today to play a part," he said.

Panhel Honors Greek Women

Wilma Jean Pokorny was named the "Outstanding Greek Woman" Monday night at the annual Panhellenic Council recognition dessert.

Miss Pokorny received the award on the basis of service to the University, to her sorority, and to the sorority system, leadership, scholarship and ideals. She is president of the Panhellenic Council and head of the student charities board.

Jane Hubbard was the recipient of the $100 Florence Currier Award for academic achievement. Laraine Walkup won the Jackie Gibbons Award for outstanding service to Panhellenic Council.

"Is Vietnam vital," Sen. Gore questioned.

"I challenge the notion that we were ever endangered by what happens in the jungles of Vietnam," he said.

THE PRESIDENT: "has acted with great courage."

U.S. Too Choosy On Site, Gore Says

By BRUCE LARRICK
Staff Writer

"As far as I'm concerned they could meet under an oak tree and work out a cease fire to stop the slaughter of humanity."

This statement by dovish Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., concerning Vietnam peace talks marks the basic contention point between him and the administration.

Speaking at a press conference yesterday, Sen. Gore said he felt Warsaw, Poland was a satisfactory site for talks to begin and questioned the outright rejection of this site by the administration.

"The only problem with Warsaw would have been censorship of the press. But this problem could have been worked out in an agreement with the Polish government, and an attempt should have been made before outright rejection," he said.

In spite of this, the Senator said he felt that peace talks would begin soon.

After the negotiations begin, he said, the most likely United States position will be a return to the Geneva Agreements, "Which provided for neutralization and unification of Vietnam with self-determination."

Sen. Gore said the Gulf of Tonkin resolution was invalid because of misrepresentation of the facts at the time of the incident. "The United States acted out of all proportion to the attacks," he said.

The United States' presence in Vietnam also is the main reason North Korea was able to seize the Pueblo, because all of the normal air support was diverted to Vietnam, he said.

He advocated diplomatic pressure to get back the 82 men still held captive in North Korea.

Conibear Moves Into Top Post

By MIKE CORE

Assistant Sports Editor

Bowling Green has a new basketball coach, but not a new face.

President William T. Jerome III made the announcement yesterday that assistant coach Robert J. Conibear would move into the head coach slot vacated by the resignation of Bill Fitch.

Conibear has been the University's assistant coach for the past four years. During the first two of those years he served as freshman coach, directing the frosh to a fine 22-9 record. His first team included All-American Walt Piatkowski and had a record of 13-3.

"I am very happy to be head coach here, it is both an honor and a challenge. I plan to begin work on next year's program right away. I think we'll surprise a few people next year."

Doyt Perry voiced his approval at a press conference held at the Holiday Inn yesterday. "I am very happy that Conibear has been selected. I know that Bob will have the full cooperation and support of the basketball players and the athletic department."

Before coming to Bowling Green, Conibear served as the head basketball coach at Detroit's Northeastern High School. He led the Northeastern Falcons to an outstanding 117-29 record while winning four league and two city championships. His teams also claimed one district title.

For the past two seasons, Joe Henderson, one of Conibear's former players from Northeastern, has been a starting forward for the Falcons.

Conibear, who received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University, earned four varsity letters in basketball during his collegiate career.

After graduation, he played for an AAU basketball team composed of outstanding players from Wayne State, the University of Detroit, and the University of Michigan. This team twice won the state championship and progressed to the finals for the regional title.

Conibear, after graduating from Detroit's Southeastern High School in 1946, was drafted into the armed services and spent one and one-half years in the U.S. Army Mountain and Ski Infantry. Later while working in Detroit's elementary schools, Conibear received his master's degree in health and physical education from Wayne State in 1959.

At Northeastern High School, Conibear was also track, cross country and swimming coach. During the summer months, he served as assistant camp director at Algonquin, Michigan's largest boys' camp.

He is 40 and married with a daughter Connie and a son Michael. (See related story on Page 8.)

Hearing Outlines Budget Problems

By ROBERT K. KRAMER
Issue Editor

No threatened boycotts, strikes, or sit-ins or demands for student monitoring of budget allocations marked last night's Student Council Open Hearing, "Financial Planning Seminar."

Unlike the pre-Easter happenings at Ohio University, this University's financial difficulties were met with seeming calm as they were outlined at the meeting. A few of the 15 students attending offered some suggestions and questions, but they succeeded in raising few eyebrows.

A six-man panel of administrators presented facts and listed items affecting the financial status of the University.

Dr. B.D. Owens, vice president for research and financial affairs, reviewed items which would supposedly justify the increase in fees recently turned down by the State Board of Regents. One of the most important reasons, he said, was inflationary costs. Others included: changing enrollment patterns, new draft regulations, costs of converting to the quarter system, increase in services being demanded, and staffing and maintaining new buildings.

A slide presentation showing changes in enrollment patterns and the things affected by them was offered by Mr. Keith Trowbridge, director of campus and institutional planning. He showed that effect of the post-war baby boom on University enrollments was leveling off, even decreasing in some cases. He pointed out that the Regents usually look closely at the University's utilization of facilities and had slides showing that in a few cases the University was under-utilizing when compared to national norms.

Elton C. Ringer, business manager, spoke on the University's fixed costs. He showed that most of the fixed costs were rising, but because of the failure to meet enrollment expectations the University did not get full state appropriations for the last fiscal year ($8.8 million instead of $9.6 million). He said that the University is hoping for a $10 million appropriation next fiscal year.

University Treasurer Paul Moyer pointed out that housing applications for next year were running about 400 under the hoped-for figure. He cited the inflationary spiral as being responsible for the increase in room and board costs because of increased costs for food, salaries, and general overhead. Mr. Moyer also pointed out that preliminary cost estimates on a proposed new high-rise dormitory were too high and that the University could not justify selling bonds to build it, so the project was scrapped.

Hawley Smith, assistant to the president, outlined the major fund areas from which the University's financial system operates. He commented that the University's operations are becoming more complex, requiring a greater need for data, and the installation of a new information system.

Editorial

Why Endorse?

Inserted in today's News is a special election section. Its purpose is to help students become better informed about the candidates up for election next Wednesday.

Tomorrow, candidates for student body president will present their views on this page. And Tuesday, following our press conference "Meet the Candidates," we will endorse candidates.

The reason we attempt to analyze and make some judgment on the different races is that it compliments our total coverage of the election.

First, as the special section does today, we present all the candidates in identical form. No opinions are offered. The candidates are given the opportunity to express themselves on some of the important issues surrounding the election.

The next logical step is to judge the candidates, based on what they say and their best performance. The News' editorial Board, composed of the editor, managing editor, editorial editor and one issue editor has reviewed the results of an interview with each candidate to be endorsed, studied their experience, past performance and future potential.

This procedure will clearly separate our opinion from the objective presentation of the candidates, and there will be no question about where we stand concerning the candidates and the election.

This is not to say that we will have an endorsement for each race. We have no such commitment. Quite simply, we will attempt to analyze the strengths of the different candidates and where there appears to be an outstanding candidate or candidates, we will so designate.

There are some who might say the News should exercise self-restraint and not make endorsements in student elections because it might unduly influence the outcome. But this suggestion misses its mark.

We regard student elections as we do other issues either inside or outside the University community. And like other issues, whether it be academic freedom, women's hours, or the war in Vietnam, it is subject to debate. Furthermore, we feel it would be negligent on our part not to express a point of view at the proper time and in the proper place.

Secondly, it is certainly questionable whether the News' editorials have unduly influenced past elections.

The purpose of our intensive election coverage is to help inform and stimulate students to choose between the best possible representatives for their student government. We hope our analysis can play a part.

The News welcomes letters to the editor. Letters should be typewritten and signed by the author and carry his typewritten name, address and phone number.

As many letters as possible will be published within the limits of space, good taste and laws of libel. The News reserves the right to edit letters more than 300 words in length.

Election Candidates

Editor's Note: The following statements are those of candidates for student body offices as listed before their quotes. They represent all of the prepared remarks B-G News editors received as of the deadline for such free space, noon, yesterday, as presented in editorials this past week. Comments are the candidates', and do not represent the endorsement of this paper.

Phi Bovier

Student Body Secretary

PHI BOVIER--Too many times this year, students have found themselves alienated from the University community's total involvement as it applies to students. In retaliation, as often promised but never pursued, a Student Council brochure will be published periodically for students. This will not only report the issues before Council, but give serious consideration to the actions, interpretations, and feelings of its members.

"Communication" is the basis of my platform. If elected, I hope to better coordinate the activities of the student body, faculty, and administrators with Council through an effective, mechanized, distribution of pertinent material.

A sincere interest is present in applying for this position. And with your vote, I hope to change this interest into participation.

Sarah Ross

SARAH ROSS--The role of Student Body Secretary is composed of two major areas. The first is clerical including minutes, agendas, and announcements. The second is the direction of student government in which a secretary should play an active part. I know Student Council can become more effective by looking toward its constituents for direction, by becoming a dynamic force through progressive legislation, and then by following such action through to completion. I also advocate reorganization of the Constitutional Convention and responsible results. I believe more involvement, motivation, and purpose are needed for an exciting and challenging year in 1969.

Student Body Treasurer

TED ARNEAULT--The past few years have revealed the need for Student Body financing. It is mandatory that the students be able to control their own funds. The financial aspects have been brought to the students' eyes mainly within the past years. Not only must a budget for our funds be set up, but through your Treasurer's office there must be a student who can identify himself, and therefore the Student Body, with the financial workings of the University and question their policies on behalf of the student. It is my view that through responsible and experienced leadership we can obtain the goals of the Student Body.

Ted Arneault

Senior President

M. J. SEILER--The question of the importance of student government has become increasingly immediate to the conscientious student. In order to help student government become a more important aspect of our campus life, it is extremely important that we strive to attain meaningful objectives. In an attempt to reach

M. J. Seiler

Allen R. Baldwin

these goals, an injection of creativity and imagination will bring about a greater interest and concern toward student government, its purpose, and its relationship to the student.

My goal is to set these meaningful objectives, help attain their end as creatively as possible, and force our class from graduating Magna Cum Silence.

AL BALDWIN--If elected President of the Senior Class, I would look forward to creating a unique approach to graduation. Graduations at this university have been notoriously boring affairs. I would like to create a different approach for the graduation of the class of 1969, an exciting event with an exciting big name speaker; an event worth going to; an event to remember.

As President of the Senior Class, I would favor deemphasizing the current legislative responsibilities of the class President.

With the approach of the quarter system next year, the needs and responsibilities of class structure will also need questioning.

And the presence of trained professionals in the Student Activities Office lessens the responsibilities of the classes in social events.

Senior Vice President

CHUCK MALLUE--The office of vice-president has been called an awkward office by Hubert Humphrey, an office that is unnatural for an active person, probably because it is an office that is essentially hidden from public view, requiring a great amount of organization and ability that go unnoticed. The vice-president of any organization must coordinate the committees of the cabinet and assist the president in his functions.

But it is not for recognition that I seek the office of Vice-president of the senior class, but rather because I enjoy working with people and I have a sincere desire to see the class of '69 accomplish as much as possible. I feel I can do as good a job filling this office as I have in other endeavors.

I have held offices in my fraternity, have a 3.32 accum, and am on the Student Academic Advisory Board for the School of Journalism. I know the hard work associated with playing a varsity, having been on last year's Lacrosse team, and I am willing to put all my efforts into the job of vice-president of the senior class.

ROBERT ALEXANDER--In the past year there has been much talk concerning the elimination of class government. In many instances the people favoring this proposal have made very good points. It is only through hard work that any effective leadership can be maintained.

One idea which next year's officers must consider is a useful gift to present to the university upon graduation. Another idea which I think is very important is an all-out attempt to get a top recording group to appear at Bowling Green.

If I were elected, I would begin contacting groups immediately in order to get their names on a contract.

Roger McCraw

Voice Their Political Views

Ideas like these help keep class government moving and help keep it effective.
I would like to be a part of this government.

Senior Secretary

ELAINE SCHWARZENBERG--In serving as Junior Class Secretary this year, I have found it a rewarding experience to work with the other members of the Junior Class Cabinet to help the Junior Class maintain an active role in the University community. The sponsoring of such speakers as Dick Gregory, conducting forums, creating class scholarships, and organizing a number of social events for the class members are all accomplishments which the Class of 1968 can be proud of sponsoring. Next year, in addition to performing the secretarial duties which this office would require, I would like to continue to work with other members of the Class of 1969 to have our class continue to be an example of the beneficial role that class government can play.

Senior Representative

ARVETTA SCOTT--As a rising senior in the College of Education I feel I can represent my class for the 1968-69 academic year. (I will not be fulfilling my student teaching requirement until the fall of 1969.)

I am presently an officer in the World Student Association and have thus had the opportunity to represent the international students to W.S.A. and the administration.

My job as senior representative will be to improve communication between members of the senior class and Student Council. I will always be willing to take your suggestions or complaints to the next Student Council meeting.

THOMAS PROUT--Since I have been involved in student government at Bowling Green, there has been a good deal of progress made in involving the student in the decision-making process. However, the students still lack the power they rightly deserve. Next year will be a crucial year in this area.

There are two areas in which I feel reform is needed: student representation on the University Committee and enlargement of the student body budget.

Bowling Green's student government should be brought in line with the other universities of our size. For example, Western Michigan has fifteen student-faculty committees with equal voting representation of both students and faculty. Western Michigan's budget is in excess of $25,000.

MARY BETH GABRENYA--As a representative to the present, often criticized Student Council, I have become aware of two major problems faced by our student government -- namely, structure and support.

The first applies to the degree to which council is a truly representative body--in other words, are organization presidents, class presidents, and individual dorm reps really necessary, or do they tend to make Council an overpopulated debating society?

I feel that definite streamlining is called for. Secondly, by support, I mean the strength of the commitment of the average student to his elected representative. While seeking support for our recent housing boycott, I was amazed at the lack of interest on the part of some of the students I spoke to.

Council, then, must become more than a joke and must concern itself with issues which would arouse the interest of a rather apathetic student body. If re-elected to Council as Senior Representative, I would try to help create this badly needed support.

Junior President

JOE LOOMIS--If I am elected Junior Class President, I intend to improve the registration procedure for juniors, maintain class government despite the quarter system, extend the library hours, eliminate all dress regulations, further liberalize the housing policy, continue to pressure the administration to act on the beer issue, and work to improve dormitory life for all students.

I will also attempt to initiate a student examination of fee increases before they are imposed upon us, and create a greatly increased and vastly improved program of visiting speakers, lectures, and entertainers.

I have been in student government for the past two years, including this year as a Student Council representative, and have served on many University committees.

If you, like me, want action when an issue concerns you, then I would appreciate your vote on May 8th.

ROGER McCRAW--Having previous experience as class Treasurer and class Vice President, I feel that I am qualified to serve as President of the Junior Class.

The establishment of project committees, officers common hour, and communication improvements would increase the importance and effectiveness of class government.

With previous experience and new ideas, I would like the opportunity to serve as President of the Junior Class. My interest lies in student government--an interest I hope to continue actively next year.

Junior Vice President

JAY BALLUCK--Running as a two-year incumbent, I think I'll have to stand as much on my record as on any plans for the future. Without boring anyone with a lot of details, I'll just say that I have supported and will continue to support current moves to de-emphasize the social projects of the class in favor of programs designed to encourage scholarship and campus improvements. With the exception of special events, social activities are properly the function of living units and other organizations, and can be much more effectively handled by them.

Next year, the big problem is going to be adjusting our campus to the quarter system. This adjustment will entail a great many difficulties and many of which can not be foreseen, and this is where

I think my experience will be most useful.

JOHN GRAFF--Class government can be active if you want it to be. The involvement of you in class activities will give the Junior Class a BIG say in all aspects of campus governments (Student Council, Student Cabinet, and dorm governments.)

On Wednesday, May 1, you will make the decision whether the Junior Class will be a leader at BGSU or a follower.

You, as a student, must get out and VOTE.

Junior Secretary

SUSAN SMITH--As Leonardo Da Vinci once said, "O, Lord, Thou givest us everything, at the price of an effort."

I believe that if we, as the Junior Class, want to gain anything, we must put forth an effort. Only through our own dedication and creativity will it be possible to make the dynamic class we all want.

It is because I believe in all these things that I am running for Junior Class Secretary.

I hope that through greater student involvement and response to our ideas that the communications barrier in our class will be broken. With work and dedication, I hope, if elected, to unify our class into a dynamic Junior Class.

PEGGY ROHRS--As students of this university make use of your voice in class policies! I make no promises; I will simply try to work for the improvement of unity in the structure and functioning of our class. I have no group affiliation, I stand on no party platform, but I do plan to use all the resources and enthusiasm available to me.

In general areas, I am anxious to see an improvement in communications between the officers and members of our class. A class newsletter was started--let's see it in actuality! Class activities were sponsored--let's see them supported!

I am interested and have the desire to serve as Secretary for the Class of 1970.

LINDA BROWN--Efficiency... Experience... Enthusiasm! Since the main job of a class secretary requires a knowledge of secretarial skills, I feel that my business education background would be advantageous for this position.

Because the job of class secretary, at present, is so defined, I would like to make this office a more dynamic one. A few of my goals which I feel would be beneficial to our class may be a better use of our class funds, and striving to improve the problem our class has always had with registration.

Junior Treasurer

CINDY GEMMA--Running for Junior Class Treasurer is a big responsibility of which I feel capable of fulfilling to its utmost. This job not only entails the handling of money and records; it also involves working with people to achieve better communications. A system by which everyone can be informed of up-to-date happenings is very much needed in our class.

It would not only promote greater interest, it would also strengthen the unity of our class.

Being a Business Education major has enabled me to learn much about the efficient budgeting of money. If elected, I would strive to use my abilities to strengthen our class and to make it the best ever!

CONNIE LOU BROWN--As treasurer of the Junior Class I will fulfill the duties of my office and use the influence of my position to promote changes which are necessary.

I will work for improvement in student-faculty relations by encouraging the administration to become more aware of the student extracurricular activities. This will enable them to understand the views and goals of the student inside as well as outside the classroom.

Another area needing improvement is that of the student social life. I would like to see more independent unity and independent sponsored social events. The Junior Class budget should be set up so as to allow for a spring weekend which is not completely dominated by Greek functions. A dance sponsored by the Junior Class on this weekend featuring a popular group should be initiated.

Junior Representative

DAVID SUTHERLAND--The pressures applied to the student is great. A small portion of the students wishes was heard when the Administration changed the housing policy. What has happened to many of the Student Council Bills?

They have been filed or forgotten, not acted upon. I propose to have representation go before the administration with the bill and wait for action. Serving on both the Sophomore Class Cabinet and the Undergraduate Alumni Association has given me the experience needed.

MARILYN MYRICK--As a fee-paying student, you have the right to help shape your future by utilizing your student rights in participation of university affairs.

There are several specific areas in which I feel that active participation is urgently needed:

- 1) Expansion of the Student Advisory Board concerning course and professor evaluation.
- 2) Re-evaluation of the student's role in university policies through the recently activated Constitutional Convention.
- 3) Improvement of the present system of class registration. (In registration for courses for spring semester, 36.9% of our Sophomore Class had to adjust their schedules due to the inefficiency of registration.)

Although not previously in a position to effect such changes, I am familiar with the people and policies involved in order to improve the present conditions. From participation on Class Publicity Committee and Student Elections Board, I have the background as well as the innovative ideas to represent you in an effective way.

With your support, these programs can be quickly initiated and successfully developed to attain positive conclusions.

CRAIG PICKERING--STUDENT COUNCIL SEATS THREE MORE REPRESENTATIVES AND CONTINUES TO INCREASE THE SIZE OF WHAT IS ALREADY A CUMBERSOME MACHINE. Although undoubtedly, this would make for a rather lengthy headline the problem is there and indeed most pressing.

My name is Craig Pickering and I am seeking the office of Junior Class representative. Enrolled in the college of Business Administration, I am a Pre-Law major with a 2.62 accum. I am currently a member of the Publications Committee of Student Council and have served in the past as a member of Rogers Judicial Board and I.F.P.C.

It is my contention that Student Council is an over represented body. Although some plans for limiting councils size have been proposed, none as yet have been acted upon. It is my pledge to you that if elected, I will initiate a workable plan for decreasing the size of council and hence make her a more efficient and workable machine.

MELINDA SMITH--Perhaps the most ideal promise one running for any office could make would be that of consulting those whom he represents before voting on any issue. However, in a University the size of ours, this would be impossible. My purpose as junior class representative would be to consider and strive for the dominant needs of the University.

I would also hope to expand the academic interests of the junior class and the University be promoting current national affairs such as the East-West Trade Conference, held last spring, and the recent Republican Convention. My basic aim, if elected, would be to promote student involvement in academic, social, and cultural facets of University life.

MORE ABOUT:

Election Candidates Voice Their Views

Sophomore President

JACK PESCI--"The student is the hub of this University with the faculty and numerous organizations the spokes. In order for the student to be strong, he must have a voice in government and this is attained through your sophomore class president.

I feel I know about the student-faculty relationships having been Kohl Hall's representative to Student Council, on Freshman Forum this past year, and in direct contact with the faculty having served on the Faculty Relations Board. The channels are open for communication but they must be used properly. Vote Jack Pesci as your spokesman on the student-faculty wheel.

JOHN GOODALL--Having served as freshman class vice president, I have become acquainted with the many problems facing our class as an organized unit. Through this experience I have become familiar with the organization of the university.

I have the interest, the desire, and the experience to confidently do the job that needs to be done. This job will consist of sitting on Student Council and acting as chairman of the sophomore class cabinet; it will consist not only of having a hand in the possible changes of the academic and living environment but also of establishing deverse social activities for the class of '71.

In Bowling Green's growing stream of student involvement, the class will continue to play an increasing role. I feel that I am ably qualified through experience and desire to lead the class of '71 to greater participation in the 1968-69 academic year.

More About

Hearing

Dean-elect of the College of Business Administration, Dr. Karl Vogt, compared the University to an input-output situation. "Simply put," he said, "you get what you pay for."

Dr. Owens then put the question "What does this mean," before the audience. He said the University could go on as before with increased costs or it could look for ways to cut costs, which is being done.

He likened cost-cutting to an operation on a nerve: "If we cut too far we can hurt the patient; if we don't cut enough we won't help the problem," Dr. Owens said.

Dr. Owens then read a five-point guideline for financial policy which was issued last Friday by President William T. Jerome, III. The following guidelines are effective for the rest of this fiscal year (June 30):

- A freeze on new faculty appointments not filled by May 1.
- University policy on minimum class size must be followed.
- Contingency monies must be returned to the general fund.
- A freeze on expenditures not vital for direct classroom instruction or research projects.
- A freeze on monies for capital improvements not now approved or under construction.

Dr. Owens also referred a statement from the Faculty Advisory Committee on Budgetary Planning which endorsed President Jerome's guidelines.

Symphonic Band
Plays Tonight

The University Symphonic Band, under the direction of Mark S. Kelly, will present a spring concert at 8:15 tonight in the Ballroom.

"Concertino for Flute, Op. 107," by Chaminade--Wilson--Wilkins, will feature Mary L. Noonan as flute soloist.

FRANK PITTMAN--During my campaign, I do not intend to fill your ears with idealistic statements and idle promises. It is the obligation of each voter to listen open-mindedly to each candidate and separate the real from the ideal.

1. Better Communication. This can be done by choosing a representative from each wing, each floor, and each dorm to keep you posted on campus issues and social functions and to poll your opinion on such matters.

2. Contributing to the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Fund. Homecoming is an opportune time to hold a major drive to raise money for this cause. Education of underprivileged people is not the only answer to this problem, but a definite step in the right direction.

3. Student Power. Every effort must be taken to correlate the administration with the student body. However, if this cannot be accomplished, then is the time to voice our dissent as prescribed by student council.

In this limited space, I am unable to amplify my ideas and feelings. I hope to see as many of you as possible to present my plans for the Class of 1971.

Sophomore Vice President

SALLY MEYER--Electing a class officer is of minor concern to many students of our University. But to me, it is very important. There has been recent discussion on whether the class structure is really a necessity on campus. It is my aim to prove that it is an asset, by uniting the sophomore class under the supervision of a responsible and capable cabinet, to enable it to operate under a unified system which would benefit the students in many ways.

The involvement which I will heavily stress, the students will gain from social functions such as our Homecoming, civic events, famous speakers, as well as becoming more acquainted with each other.

JIM TAYLOR--I often wonder if a majority of freshmen are really concerned whether or not their class has progress, purpose, and most important, a direction. The vice president of your sophomore class will be held with the responsibility of achieving that progress, that purpose, and that direction.

Progress can only be accomplished when the vice president has an interest in the class functions and their operation. Your sophomore cabinet will establish the class purpose. But it would be my duty to guide them toward proper and worthwhile goals. Last fall we were told ours was the biggest and best class ever to enroll at Bowling Green. As vice president, I would give our class a new goal, a new direction and make ours a superior class.

Sophomore Secretary

DEBBIE STANLEY--As a candidate for Secretary of the Class of 1971 I would like to be a part of a movement to make our class more unified. In a university as large as Bowling Green class communication and unity are definite problems. But, I feel that these problems can be overcome by the use of class newsletters, class sponsored activities, social events and a close working class cabinet.

If elected I will work hard to achieve these goals and make a stronger, more unified sophomore class.

JANICE M. SKAPER--The students of Bowling Green need to choose leaders who are capable of hard work and are willing to do it! Pretty faces and campaign promises will no longer win elections. The students of BG are aware of this and are now looking at the candidates past work and ability. This is good. It represents renewed interest in good leadership.

I am running with a team of people who are proven hard workers. John Goodall did a fine job this past year as freshman class vice-president; Jim Taylor has much leadership background; Wes Bowman was an excellent treasurer this past year for the freshman class; and I am used to the responsibility, as is proven by my current presidency of Harmon Hall. We are all good workers and hope to work hard for the Sophomore class this coming year.

Sophomore Treasurer

BRUCE EDWARDS--"Members of the class of '71," I am running for the position of Sophomore Class Treasurer. If elected Sophomore Class Treasurer, I will initiate several programs. In general, these programs would encompass the scope of my powers as treasurer. I would try to initiate a more efficient and economical allocation for the budget. I will try to allocate as much money as possible for events, but in the same light, I will strive to find a less costly way of planning and financing these events.

Being a member of the Sophomore Class Cabinet, I will strive to further your interests in other areas to the best of my abilities.

Sophomore Representative

DON SCHERZER--Having been freshman class representative to Council this year, I have gained valuable insight into the workings of the organization. A knowledge of the flaws and potential that this year's council has displayed is essential to the change Council must undergo due to the quarter system.

As a member of the Vietnam Week Committee, I see the need for a concerted effort among various campus organizations to establish an outstanding speakers program here.

I have researched the establishment of a "Committee for Participating Education" whereby students could petition the University to offer new courses of special interest to the students.

In implementing these ideas and others, I feel that my knowledge of and experience on Council can benefit the Student Body.

CYNDI NORBUT--You, the student, are what makes a college and should be given the utmost consideration. A constant effort should be made to advance the cause of rights and responsibilities of the student body.

I hope to provide the students with a greater awareness of what is going on and enable them to become personally involved, if they wish, in some way so that each student's requests can be heard. My involvement in various activities has provided me with a background in student affairs.

I haven't served on council before, but given the opportunity I will execute my office with the utmost enthusiasm and responsibility.

STEVE HARRIS--Some people say that the Student Council is dead. They say that it is little more than a debate club. There may be some truth in these statements, but I feel the potential is there--a potential that could make the Student Council more effective and more representative of the students' views on vital campus issues. Fellow Freshmen, if you feel that the Student Council can exert a greater influence on the administration of this university and if you feel that a little life should be added to BG's "dead debate club," then I ask for your help in my campaign.

DIANE DENNY--Bowling Green University is a campus of ever expanding horizons. From one end of the campus to the other new facilities are constantly being erected. However, in many other areas we are still lacking improvements.

Time after time we hear individuals complaining about the different campus and national policies. However, when the chance does arise to voice their opinion, people fail to take advantage of the opportunity. It's an easy task to back events that interest you, a policy you agree with or a championship team. But the difficulty arises when you have to assert an opinion that differs from the majority of people on campus, support a losing team or attend functions that may not be of greatest interest to you.

If elected as Sophomore Class Representative I will make an earnest attempt to improve these apathetic feelings and instill new enthusiasm in the students of the class of 1971.

JUDY LOWTHER--Although I have only been on campus and involved in student government for one year, I see the need for reform. As of yet, students have not been able to obtain a voice in the administrative policy-making functions of the university. Along with this voice can come residence hall reform, autonomy of student body funds, and students free to determine their social environment. If elected to Student Council I would place my goals at achieving a voice for Council and students within the Administration. These changes can be made through your help and a strong student government. Student Council's experiences in the boycott should be the hope for next year. Potentially, students have power but first they must realize it and then seize it in a responsible, aggressive manner. It is my desire to work for you in obtaining these goals.

JAMES VAAS--I feel that it is my duty as a sophomore to run for the office of council representative. I am very tired of seeing a stagnant Student Council meet week after week and discuss their own ineffectiveness. I think it's now time for action. I think Student Council should demand from the Administration powers which will make it a governing body and not just a silly puppet. I will be living here at B.G. for the next three years, I want to help implement an already great university. I want to answer yes to the statement: "Bowling Green is your home nine months a year; do you like your home?"

MARILYN GREGOR--We've seen, heard, and talked about the workings of Student Council this year. We've seen bills laid aside, bills passed and forgotten. We have seen amendment after amendment to a constitution which needs so much revamping.

I've seen all these things first hand on Council. You've seen them practically.

What is needed is a new constitution defending powers and working for you. I would like to work on, work with, and work by this Constitution. I would like the opportunity to do so as Sophomore Representative to Student Council.

AL ZEMAN--Through real contact as I have experienced it this year, through active dorm participation, having lived in the separate and different halls, through athletics, including freshman swimming and lacrosse, through Greek functions, holding the Office of Interfraternity Pledge Council's Executive vice president, and through campus involvement afforded me through a varied Liberal Arts curriculum, I have gained what I feel is the richest form of experience, and this is what is necessary to represent our class.

"You don't need a technical degree to do important work at IBM. Just a logical mind."

"When I got my degree in Psychology, I never thought I'd be telling computers how to do their job.

"But that's what my work comes down to. I'm helping improve the way a computer converts programming language into machine language. (This is Bruce Mitchell, a Junior Programmer at IBM.)

"I guess that doesn't sound very exciting, but it is. It all has to do with the way computers work. Laymen talk about them as if they were intelligent. But actually, if you want to get anthropomorphic about it, they're very literal minded. The programmer does the thinking, not the machine."

Your major doesn't matter

"You don't need a technical background, just a logical mind. You can be a good programmer no matter what you majored in. IBM sends you to programming school. And pays your full salary at the same time.

"One reason I like this field so much is that you're continually solving problems. I suppose that's the main reason I got into it.

"But I didn't overlook the growth factor, either. I read that there's a national shortage of 50,000 programmers. And the demand is expected to more than double in the next five years."

What Bruce has said covers only a small part of the IBM story. For more facts, visit your campus placement office. Or send an outline of your career interests and educational background to I. C. Pfeiffer, IBM Corporation, Dept. C, 100 South Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. We're an equal opportunity employer.

Rohrs, Ex-Navy Man, Vies For S.C. President

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of features on the candidates running for Student Body President. Last Wednesday, the News featured Nick Licata, today Kenn Rohrs....

By LINDA HERBKERSMAN
Assistant Feature Editor

Four years in the Navy, stationed in Mississippi, and never saw a ship---that's Kenn Rohrs, 25, a junior in liberal arts.

"I'm a little older than the average junior, I guess," he stated, "but I don't think this will be a hindrance in my campaign for president of student council."

He admitted he had a little trouble adjusting to college again, after being away from it for four years, but is now back in the "groove," and serves as a commuter representative to Student Council.

Rohrs said he felt there was "definitely not" enough communication between the Administration and the student body, but he has been trying to correct this problem by serving on Dr. Bond's "Student Advisory Board to the Vice President."

"We give our views to Dr. Bond on certain issues," he explained, "and we also try to tell him what others on campus feel."

"I think there should be more constructive programs on campus too."

"The students should not sit back and let the Administration do everything by itself. But they should not stand up and yell and scream about something either. I do think they should have a greater voice in their education. I think the Administration should have to go through Student government on issues."

Because he serves on Dr. Bond's committee, he was asked what he thought of the delay in a decision on the beer issue.

"It seems to be a possibility," he said, "...I guess we would have it in the Carnation Room."

But what about the time lag in making a decision?

"It's a problem," he admitted.

"I think Student Council should set time limits in which the Administration should make decisions on bills. The content of the bill would determine how long a time council would allow for the decision."

Rohrs said he doesn't believe the students are really apathetic to any great extent. He also said teachers are really helping out in that they are having more discussions in their classes rather than just lectures. This, he added, carries over in the students' attitudes toward everything else on campus.

"Students were apathetic about elections because they had no real choices to make," he said. "But this year, I think they really do have a choice. That's why I'm running."

UNITED AIR LINES
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

The following questions and answers were made available to the News by the Quarter Questions Committee: Dr. George Herman, Dr. Wayne Johnson and Dr. Virgil Ort. If you have questions about the quarter system and how it will affect you, write to "Quarter Questions," 122 Shotzel Hall. Include a mailing address, since we may not have space to answer all questions in this column.

Is there any danger of my being short of hours if I have taken 15-16 hours each semester? If so, when will I find out?

If you planned to graduate in June of 69 or 70, and you have earned thirty or thirty-one credits every year, your graduation will still be on schedule under the quarter system. You will be notified of the credits you have on record this fall, but you can figure it out now. Multiply your semester credits by 1.5. The result is your amount of quarter credits, of which you will need 183 to graduate, and can get 45 to 50 per year.

I heard that rising seniors would be allowed to stay on a semi-semester plan, where graduation requirements for credit hours would not be changed. At the end of the year we would receive semester hour credits for the quarter hours we had taken. Is this true?

It will work the other way around. The semester hours and grades you have earned will be converted to quarters. Whether you have three years or one more quarter to go, everybody will be getting quarter credits and grades after September.

The main gripe from a friend who has gone through this quarter change from semesters at Ohio University is the cramming of too much of a subject into one quarter. It looks as a big problem there. Will it be here?

It will probably happen in some courses. We have tried to leave adequate time, splitting courses if necessary. Nevertheless, some instructors have never taught or studied on the quarter system, and will plan too much material for the first quarter or two. Most of the courses have been adapted in such a way as to avoid this -- we hope.

How many courses can I take each quarter? Will this amount be too much of a burden? Will every student receive a new bulletin?

As under the present system, the number of credits to be taken each semester will be specified, not the number of courses. The usual fifteen credits under the semester system was almost always five courses. Under the quarter system fifteen credits will still be usual, but may include anywhere from three to five courses. Every student will get a new catalog.

How will the quarter system benefit the student?

The chief advantage to everybody is the better holiday calendar. Some students will like having a smaller number of courses at one time, which permits concentration of effort. Other students, however, will dislike the short quarter and the number of class meetings. Future students will gain something in ease of transfer from one state institution to another.

Stickmen To Face 'Conditioned' Irish

By GARY DAVIS
Assistant Sports Editor

When the Falcons travel to South Bend, Indiana this afternoon they'll remain unsure of how talented their Notre Dame lacrosse opponents will be.

At the present time the Falcon stickers are sure only that "Notre Dame is a well-conditioned team."

The Irish hosts, who suffered a 10-5 defeat at the hands of the Falcons last season, are returning basically the same team this year. The Irish have met with little success thus far despite their edge in conditioning.

In the contest against the Irish last year the Falcons snapped four team marks and matched another one in routing the visitors from South Bend.

Notre Dame sports a 1-4 mark this season, having scored 40 goals and given 57 in their five matches.

"The conditioning edge means little if you lack the skill," said head Falcon coach Mickey Cochrane.

Leading the Irish scoring will be returning midfielder Tom Morin who has 12 goals in the season. Notre Dame has managed to top only Randolph-Macon, 17-8, while dropping decisions to Denison, 15-3, Ohio State University, 14-5, Duke, 12-8, and 8-7 to Washington and Lee.

"They'll be a hard hitting team, and could possibly run us," said Cochrane. "One thing is for sure, we'll get a good workout."

The Falcons will carry a 3-2 record into the contest and a 1-1 mark in the college division. The Birds have scored 59 goals and given up 41.

The alternating of attack units, first initiated by the Falcons in the Kenyon match, could figure to be of greater importance in a fast moving game where the opposition is "well conditioned."

Prime areas of concern for the Falcons however, in their practice sessions prior to the Notre Dame match, were speedier clears and ground balls around the crease (goal circle).

"If the other teams recovers these loose balls it means shot on goal, and in the Kenyon game they beat us there," said Cochrane.

Pete Farrell (midfielder) has wrestled the team lead in scoring from attackman Steve Hart, 16 points to 15.

The pair head a list of 12 Falcons that have contributed goals to the Falcon cause. Also among the leaders are Dick Slater with 12 points, Jack Ross (A) 11, John Dohms (A) 10 and John Feasel (now defense) 10.

Toledo Tennis Talent Too Much For BG

By DAVE EGBERT
Sports Writer

It was a long afternoon for the Bowling Green tennis team as defending MAC champ Toledo handed the Falcons an 8-1 setback.

Even in defeat, though, BG played some of their best tennis of the year, but it was simply a case of too much Toledo talent.

Returning for the Rockets were 4 defending conference champions in Mike Ducey, Pete Kramer, Terry Brown and Dave Koehn, along with super-sophomore Ken Swartz, a combination that proved tough to beat.

Swartz, TU's No. 1 man, handed Mike Miller his third loss in 10 outings, 6-0, 6-1. He had tremendous power in his strokes and was especially tough at the net, being able to cover almost any shot made by Miller.

Dennis Cavanaugh was dealt his first setback in 10 decisions, dropping a 7-5, 6-3 contest to Mike Ducey.

In No. 3 singles, BG's Mike Costello extended Terry Brown the distance before dropping a 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 match.

Pete Kramer, perhaps better known for his football ability, took the measure of Trevor Weiss, 6-2, 6-2, the loss being the first for Weiss.

BG picked up their only triumph when Guenter Herold surprised Rick Nagy with a three set, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 win.

The final singles match pitted Dan Norris against TU's Dave Koehn, Koehn coming out on top 97-, 6-0.

Doubles competition was a one-way street for Bowling Green.

Miller and Cavanaugh went three sets before losing 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 to Ducey and Swartz, a pair that has all the shots it takes to be a winner.

Brown and Kramer took an easy 6-0, 6-2 win over Costello and Weiss before Norris and Bob Lempert were dumped by Nagy and Dave Boehk, 3-6, 6-1, 6-0.

BG's mark for the year fell to 7-3, but it took an outstanding Toledo team to lower it.

Still, there will be another chance when the MAC championships take place later in the season and it could be a different story then.

BG Golfers 7th In MAC

Ohio U. won the second annual Mid-Am Invitational, Monday, on their own course, and BG finished 7th in the field of 12 Ohio and MAC colleges.

Of the 60 golfers entered in the 36 hole tournament, the Falcons' Tom Bohardt and Mike McCullough tied for 6th place with identical rounds of 73-74-147. All five of O.U.'s starters were among the top ten, led by Ludi Schenk with a low total of 178.

Bohardt and McCullough were followed by Dave Traphagen and Jim Seving at 180, and Mike Lott (162), and Greg Monroe (163) for Forrest Creason's 4-10 squad.

Against MAC competition, the Falcons defeated Toledo and Miami, while Western Michigan, Kent State, and Marshall placed third, fourth and fifth. Cincinnati was the runnerup and Youngstown edged BG by two strokes. Dayton Akron and Xavier brought up the rear.

BG Falls 5-4

DETROIT - (Special) Bowling Green's Falcons are finding it harder and harder to win ball games, especially in the late innings. Last night the Falcons fell to the University of Detroit 5-4 in ten innings.

An unearned run in the tenth was the undoing of Bowling Green. Detroit's pitcher Salci tripled and then relief pitcher Bill Becker threw a wild pitch and Salci came home with the winning run.

Frobose started the game and left in the third when Detroit came on for four runs. He was relieved by Leininger and then Huwer came in and pitched until the ninth. Becker was the losing pitcher having only pitched part of one inning.

Conibear's Chance

Bob Conibear has his chance. After working up through the system in four years, Conibear is now head coach of the Falcon basketball team. He was selected from some 65 applicants. The reasons behind his selection are valid ones.

Doyt Perry, head of the committee to select the coach, explained the selection. "By employing from within, we believe that the program of the past year can be best perpetuated. When you have a winning system as we did this year you want to keep it. We felt putting Bob in control would keep this system in."

Conibear said he would go along with almost the same system that Fitch used this past season. "I will have to modify it some according to the personnel, but basically we will use the same type of offensive and defensive set-ups we used this year."

Conibear's chance is both good and bad. Basically it is good for the University as he is probably the most capable man to move in, but the move can be looked at with some disadvantages to Conibear.

Taking over the reins of the coaching job brings a pot of problems. The biggest one is, of course, trying to build a winning team against a schedule next year that not only includes the 12 MAC games, but the likes of Houston, Vanderbilt, Dartmouth, Dayton, St. Joe, Virginia Tech and Loyola.

Perhaps it's unfortunate that Bowling Green is moving into some of the big time names of basketball at a time when their own program is in the rebuilding stage.

Other problems involved are in the recruiting department. Conibear has some advantage here in that he has been involved in recruiting for the University during the past four years. But he's the first to admit that it could go better.

"Recruiting isn't hurting as much as people think, but we are missing the boat on a few kids. We have a junior college boy signed but we have to keep looking for new talent."

Another problem is who will be the new assistant coach. Logically Jim Lessig should move up to that position from the freshmen coach. But Doyt Perry has something to say about that.

"Bob will have to struggle with me to get Lessig. Jim is moving more and more into the administration of the athletic department. He's my assistant now and I don't know if he'll have enough time to devote to being assistant coach."

If Lessig isn't available, what next? Conibear would like to stay in the alumni ranks if possible. "Doyt and I will have to get together about the assistant coach. I would like to move someone up from the alumni ranks. We have quite a few qualified men that can move up."

Rough Road Ahead

There's also going to be pressure in that he will have to fill the shoes of a coach who had an 18-7 won-lost record and was the Collegiate Coach of the Year in Ohio.

"I do feel some pressure," Conibear admitted. "It's going to be a leaner season than last year. It's going to be a challenge, too, and if our kids learn this they will do alright. It is going to take a lot of work on everyone's part."

Doyt Perry agreed with him. "Bill Fitch would be a hard man to replace as would any man who had the season that he did. But that's why we feel Bob (Conibear) will do the job. He learned from Fitch and has already said that he will use Fitch's program as much as possible."

Moving up to this position is a big step for Conibear. He seemed quite happy at the press conference yesterday, but one couldn't help but detect a little look of worry in his eyes.
